Good morning, all...

With respect to the controversy surrounding the “development” of the Lytle Wetlands:

First of all, I have no dog in this race because I live several blocks away from Tom White. However, I know him to be a conscientious, long-time homeowner and resident of the south end. He has built several houses down here, including parts of my house, and soon will be building me an ADU. He will take responsible steps to mitigate whatever deleterious effects arise from this wetlands issue.

Second, I understand that it is one aggrieved homeowner who is driving this objection because his property is adjacent to the proposed construction. If so, let him take it up with Tom directly and work to resolve the water/run-off issues. That’s what neighbors normally and respectfully do..... at least in my neighborhood.

Which leads me to the third point: Why, on Bainbridge island, can we not “stay in our lane?” Why is this situation the whole island’s issue because one person is unhappy? And others, with absolutely no connection to this part of the island, but who are against any development in general, then take up “the cause”, and weigh in?

Good luck to Tom. You can put me down as a “pro” even though I don’t think I should even get a vote.

Sincerely

Anne Browne
